

What has the pandemic forced you to do that you should have been doing all along and will continue to do?

Taking the time to refresh and recharge. I think as women we are so prone to give ourselves to others that we forget to take the time for self-care, which is so important for our mind, body and spirit.

What single accomplishment are you most proud of and why?

Having the perseverance, motivation and will to build a successful business doing what I love. I enjoy serving others, developing relationships and ensuring I provide clients with the best opportunities that I can.

What charities are you involved in and why?

In the past, I was part of the Boys and Girls Club, but more recently, I am involved with The Voice for Children. It's a charity that provides for underprivileged children in Latin America and develops community centers, food centers and shelters for endangered girls.

What advice would you give to other women looking to make a difference?

Trust yourself, listen to your gut, be kind to yourself, never give up, and seek alliances that you can learn from.

What keeps you up at night?

Honestly, I sleep really well (LOL). I have always been that way. I think it's because when I'm finally finished for the day, my mind is clear and at ease as I know I can and will manage it tomorrow.

Who was your inspiration and role model?

My dad was a great role model. He was strong, intelligent and confident and a successful developer in Peru.

How do you see your earning potential compared to a male in the same field?

I don't see a difference in the earning potential in real estate when it comes to gender. It's more about skill, experience, market knowledge and really the service you provide to the client.
